A trip to explore the diverse scenery modeled by the continuous activity of the Llaima volcano inside of the Conguillío national park, an invitation to discover the beginning of life after the eruptive processes of one of the most active volcanoes in South America, a fascinating journey to discover the rich plant and bird life of the Captren lagoon and the imposing presence of the Mother Araucaria, an example at more than 2000 years old and silent witness to the fury and energy of the resuscitated, in addition to being the sustenance of the Pehuenche community to this very day.

In this park are found forests with native species untouched by man, growing and developing in absolute freedom.

An encounter with the history and cultural ancestry of the people of the land and the Pehuén, with their legends and histories of life that continue through time, and they wish to share with the visitors that come to their lands.
